Swiss NanoConvention Online, 24–25 June 2021

Lots of possibilities for personal contact at the SNC 2016 in Basel

The Swiss NanoConvention (SNC) connects key players from science and industry in the field of nanotechnology and nanoscience. The online conference enables the exchange between industry, academia, investors, and representatives from administration and politics. The SNC 2021 offers a digital platform for discussions, innovations, new technologies and knowledge exchange on basic and applied research. In addition, the SNC is an enabler for decision makers with regards to opportunities and risks of new key technologies in the 21st century. Participants will gain insight into “hot” current research topics through keynote lectures delivered by world-leading scientists and can attend topical sessions addressing solutions to future information technology, sustainability and health.

In general, topics in nanosciences and nanotechnologies are very diverse and cover subjects such as chemistry, biology, material research, information and communication technology, sustainability, and optics. The SNC 2021 offers ideal conditions for digital networking among the leading researchers and developers in the field of nanoscience. Contacts can be established during the digital networking break and digital poster session. Companies and institutes can showcase their latest products or services during the exhibition and hunt for their future employees during the Job Fair.

The following renowned leading scientists will deliver plenary Keynote Lectures at the SNC2021: Jos Benshop (ASML, Netherlands), Andreas Heinrich (Center for Quantum Nanoscience, South Korea), Wanda Kukulski (MRC Laboratory of Molecular Biology, England), David Leigh (The University of Manchester, England), Lieven Vandersypen (TU Delft, Netherlands), Harald Weinfurter (LMU München, Germany) and Vivian Yam (University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong).

Plenary Talk at the SNC 2016

The SNC 2021 has chosen the following topics representing highly active current research areas: Nano for Quantum Computing, Nano for Photonics and Quantum Communication, Nanotechnologies for Health and Healthy Aging, Nanotechnologies for Antimicrobial Resistance, Nano for Climate, Nanoengineered Organic and Inorganic Materials, Advanced Manufacturing at the Nanoscale, Nano Innovations, Nanoanalytics and Imaging for Quality Products. On top, a Nanotechnology Startup Contest is planned.

Among the well-known participants and speakers of previous conferences were (among others) Heinrich Rohrer (Nobel Prize laureate), Joanna Aizenberg (Harvard University), and Michelle Y. Simmons (UNSW Australia).

Planned Budget for the Swiss NanoConvention 2021 Online (in CHF)

	Expenses	Revenue
Platform costs	20'000
Administrative costs*	98'000
Speaker fees	12'000
IT costs	8'000
Marketing	8'000
Other costs	5'000
Open sponsoring		51'000
Contribution of the SNI		100'000
Total	151'000	151'000

*The administrative costs are in full carried by the SNI

An important part of the SNC is the exhibition accompanying the conference. It will be attended during selected digital coffee and lunch breaks. It offers the perfect opportunity to bridge the gap between educational institutions, research institutes and industry in a digital lounge.

The Job Fair will add an exciting new element to the Swiss NanoConvention. It will allow employers and future employees to connect via video meeting rooms, to evaluate open positions and to network in private chats.

We are proud of our success of the SNC in 2016, which we organized, with over 650 participants and 124 poster contributions. It was received with overwhelming enthusiasm and allows us to look forward with great expectations to the upcoming SNC Online in June 2021. We would be delighted if you decide to support the SNC 2021 Online with a sponsor or exhibitor contribution.
